Ready June 25 — the fifth postwar volume of the Council's annual survey —

THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS, 1950

By RICHARD P. STEBBINS with an Introduction by LEWIS W. DOUGLAS

Here is an authoritative, dispassionate account of our recent foreign relations which may well mark a turning point in the national foreign policy debate. Clearly, readably, and without partisan bias it analyzes the global issues which confronted the American people and their government at a critical moment of world history, and shows how we as a nation met or evaded them. In so doing it not only clarifies the record of a much disputed period but also illuminates many of the problems with which our diplomacy is still grappling more than six months later.

This new volume of THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS will be welcome to every thoughtful citizen who is dissatisfied with stock explanations and wants to judge for himself why our Far Eastern policy is still unacceptable to our allies, why Western Europe still depends on our military and economic assistance, how the Soviet leaders have been contriving to exploit our domestic differences, what we might still do to frustrate their designs, and what moves of ours have already played into their hands.

Council members should find this volume an interesting and valuable addition to their libraries. The regular price is still $5.00; but copies will be supplied to members at the special reduced price of $4.00, post free. Please use the order form below.

Dear Allen:

You were very kind to write me a note to express your regret that you were unable to attend the presentation of my father's portrait at the Council House on June 6. I know that your admiration and affection for my father was fully reciprocated.

Sincerely,

Norman

Norman P. Davis.
